This being the Anniverſary of the Birth-Day of his Imperial Highneſs the Great Duke Alexander Paulovitz, as alſo of her Imperial Highneſs the Great Dutcheſs Helena Paulowna, it was celebrated at Court this Morning, in Grand Gala, and in the Evening there will be a Ball.

Madrid, December 26.

The firſt Care of his preſent Majeſty, when he received the unwelcome News of his Auguſt Father's Death, was, that the Body ſhould be interred with proper Solemnity and State. His Excellency the Marquis de Santa Cruz, Chief Steward of the King's Houſhold, was appointed to conduct the Funeral Ceremony, and his Excellency the Marquis of Valdecarzana, his Majeſty's Chamberlain, to give the neceſſary Directions for the Delivery of the Body to the Chief Steward.

Their Excellencies the Marquis de Coguludo, the Marquis de Villadarias, and the Dukes of Montellano, and Granada de Ega, Lords of the Bedchamber in Waiting, attended by Nine Gentlemen of the Bedchamber, laid out the Body in the Preſence of the Chamberlain, placed on it the Ribbands and Collars of the different Orders of the Holy Ghoſt, Saint Januarius Conſtantine, the Golden Fleece, and Charles the Third, and laid it in a Lead Coffin, caſed in a Wooden one, under Two Keys, and covered with a Tiſſue Cloth. On the 14th of December, at a Quarter paſt Five in the Evening, the Body was removed by the Lords in Waiting, ſummoned for the Purpoſe, and others in the Service of his Majeſty, preceded by the Chamberlain, from his Majeſty's Bedchamber

[ Price Seven-pence. ]

Bedchamber to his Dreſſing Room, in the Preſence of his Excellency Don Pedro Lopez de Serena, one of his Majeſty's Counſel of State, Miniſter of the Finances, and Chief Notario of the Kingdoms of Caſtille and Leon, and ordered by his Majeſty to be preſent on ſuch Occaſions. The Chamberlain, there, according to the Ceremony preſcribed, made a formal Delivery of the Body to the Chief Steward, who was waiting to receive it, attended by the Under Stewards, named for the Service of the Week in the King's Apartments. Theſe, and the Lords and Gentlemen of the Bedchamber, conducted it to the Ambaſſador's Saloon, hung with rich Tapeſtry, and further fitted for the Solemnity by the Addition of Seven Altars, and on a Part of the Floor, raiſed and covered, a State Bed, on which the Body was laid. Here the Chief Steward, with like Ceremony, gave it in Charge to the ancient and noble Guard of the Monteros de Eſpinoſa, to be re-delivered to his Excellency at a proper Time, for the Purpoſe of being conveyed to the Royal Monaſtery at the Eſcurial. The Monteros immediately entered on their Office, Two at the Head, with the Crown and Sceptre, and Two at the Feet; and beſides theſe, Two Stewards of the Houſhold for the Week attended as Guards, and relieved each other: The Body Guards and Exempt Officers were alſo alternately preſent; and their Captain, his Excellency Prince de Maſerano, was not once abſent from the Time the Body was firſt entruſted to the Guard, to that of its Interment at St. Lorenzo.

At Six in the Evening his Excellency Don Antonio, Lord Biſhop of Sentinanar, Patriarch of the Indies, and Chief Almoner to his Majeſty, entered the Saloon in his Pontifical Habit, followed by the Prieſts and Muſicians of the Royal Chapel, the Lords of the Bedchamber, the Chief Steward of the Houſhold, and the Under Stewards for the Week. The Service for the Dead was then performed, and the Doors afterwards thrown open to as many of every Deſcription as were willing to ſee their deceaſed Monarch.

At Five the next Morning, (Monday the 15th) the Religious Communities of the Dominicans, Franciſcans, Auguſtins, and Carmelites, began to aſſemble in Order, and when the Prieſts of the Royal Chapel had retired, each Community ſang Part of the Service for the Dead, and returned in like Order in the Evening to repeat it. As many Maſſes as the Time would allow of were celebrated at the Six leſſer Altars in the Morning of the ſame Day.

The Day following Maſs was again performed by his Excellency the Lord Archbiſhop of Corinth, Nuncio from his Holineſs the Pope in theſe Kingdoms; the Prieſts of the Royal Chapel ſung Part of the Service for the Dead; and Two other Maſſes were celebrated by the Prieſts of the Royal Convent, of bare-footed Friars, and thoſe of the Incarnation.

When the Church Ceremonies were concluded, a Meeting was held of the Illuſtrious Order of the Golden Fleece, compoſed of Eight Knights, and the Regiſter, the Count of Caſtelblanco. The Senior Knight took the Collar of the Order from the Coffin, which his Majeſty had worn as Chief and Sovereign. The ſame Ceremony was performed by Eight Knights, Great Croſs Bearers, of the Royal and diſtinguiſhed Spaniſh Order of Charles the Third, of which his Majeſty was the Founder. Both Collars were given to the Cuſtody of the Keeper of the Jewels. The other Collars were taken away without Ceremony, no other of the reſpective Knights being preſent.

From that Time, only a few Perſons of Diſtinction were admitted, who met to determine at what Hour the Body ſhould be removed. At Three on Tueſday Afternoon the Prieſts of the King's Chapel, with the Moſt Illuſtrious Don Auguſtin Rubin de Cevallos, Lord Biſhop of Jaen and Inquiſitor General, aſſiſted at Part of the Service for the Dead; and the Funeral Proceſſion began to form in the Palace Court. The Robes of the different Orders, and the Hat, which had remained with the Body, were now taken away, and the Body itſelf removed by the Lords of the Bedchamber, and the Stewards of the Houſhold, to the Top of the Stairs, from whence it was taken to the Bottom by the Gentlemen Penſioners. There it was received by his Excellency the Marquis de Villena, Chief Maſter of the Horſe, and the Marquis de S. Leonardo, his Majeſty's Firſt Equerry, who covered the Coffin with the Tiſſue Cloth that had been uſed for the ſame Purpoſe in the Saloon. The Body, ſtill attended by the Guards and Gentlemen that had ſurrounded it when on the State Bed, was put into the Carriage waiting for it, which in the Front of the Palace joined the Cavalcade, drawn up in the following Order.

1. The Company of Royal Spaniſh Body Guards, commanded by the Standard Bearer Don Laurencio Sanchez.

12. Their Excellencies the Marquis de S. Leonardo, the Count de Aranda, the Duke de Hijar and del Arco, who, being the oldeſt Lords of the Bedchamber, were ordered by his preſent Majeſty to atter d the Body.

13. Four Cadets of the Pioneers of the Royal Body Guards.

14. The Inſpector of the Royal Stables.

15. The BODY.

16. On each Side of the Body, Four of his Majeſty's Equerries on Horſeback.

17. In the ſame Order, Four Caballerizos de Campo.

18. Two Monteros of the Bedchamber at the Steps of the Carriage that bore the Body.

19. His Excellency the Marquis de Santa Cruz, Chief Steward of the Houſhold; his Excellency the Prince de Maſerano, Captain of the Guard; and the Moſt Illuſtrious Lord Biſhop of Jaen, Inquiſitor General, as Prelate of the Proceſſion.

20. Twenty Men from the Royal Life Guards, as Eſcort to the Body, commanded by Second Lieutenant Don John Vandervelen, of the Flemiſh Company, and the Exempt Baron de Amerſtad, with a Subaltern.

21. The Italian Squadron of tl Corps of Royal Life Guards, commanded by th Standard Bearer Don Joſeph Sexti; this Squadron : d the two others of Life Guards abovementioned ere under the Orders of his Excellency, the Mai de Miravel, Adjutant General of the Royal Cor Life Guards.

22. His Majeſty's State Coach.

23. Nine Coaches belonging to tne endants.

24. Four Grooms, and other Officers the Royal Stables, and of the Houſhold, to be ready in caſe of Neceſſity on the Way.

The Infantry Companies of Royal Spaniſh and Walloon Guards, and the Regiments of Infantry in Garriſon at Madrid, with their Arms reverſed, and Funeral Muſic, were filed on each Side of the Way through ſuch Parts of Madrid where the Proceſſion was to paſs, viz. under the Gate of the Arſenal, the Street del Sacramento, the Place de Puerta Cerrada, and the Street and Gate de Segovia; beyond which the Prince's Regiment of Cavalry was drawn up in Battalion: The uſual Salute was made by Ten Pieces of Cannon, placed under the Palace del Buen Retiro on his Majeſty's Demiſe, beſides one which was diſcharged every Quarter of an Hour, according to the eſtabliſhed Ceremonial. The Proceſſion proceeded by the new Walk by St. Vincent's Gate, to the Pardo Road, St. Fernando Bridge, and the New Caſtille Road. At Half paſt Nine it arrived at the Village of Galapagar, the only Place where it was to halt, and where the Body was depoſited in the Pariſh Church, and attended by the Life Guards, the Halberdiers, Two Companies of the Spaniſh and Walloon Guards, the Monteros of the Bedchamber, and all thoſe whoſe Duty it was to be preſent. At Half paſt Five the next Morning (Wedneſday) the Order of the Proceſſion was reſumed, and at Half after Eight the Whole arrived at the Royal Monaſtery of St. Lorenzo, where Two Companies of Spaniſh and Walloon Guards were in waiting; and at the principal Gate of the Monaſtery, a Guard from the Corps of Royal Body Guards, commanded by his Excellency the Marquis de Ruchena the Major. The Three Squadrons of Guards that had eſcorted the Body on the Road, drew up in Front of the Monaſtery. When the Carriage ſtopt, it was taken out by the Gentlemen Penſioners, aſſiſted by the Caballerizos de Campo, and received by the Community with lighted Tapers, headed by the R. F. Prior and his Aſſiſtants, in their Choir Hoods, bearing the Croſs, and the Candleſticks. The Coffin containing the Royal Corpſe being placed on a Table, the Steward of the Houſhold produced the Letter written by his preſent Majeſty to the R. F. Prior, informing him of the Death of the King his Father, and of his having ſent the Body to that Monaſtery to be interred with the uſual Solemnity. The Prior read the Letter aloud in the Preſence of the People, the Steward of the Houſhold ſtanding on one Side, and the Notario Mayor on the other. The Prieſts of the Royal Chapel, with the Inquiſitor-General, then ſang the Prayer for the Dead, the Captain of the Guard ſtanding at the Head of the Coffin, the Lords of the Bedchamber and other Attendants at the Sides. The King's Prieſts then retired, and the Monaſtery Choir began the Miſerere, while the Gentlemen Penſioners took the Body to the firſt Door, from whence it was carried on by the Lords of the Bedchamber and the Stewards of the Houſehold to the Bier in the Center of the Chapel. When the Body was placed on the Bier, Four Monteros of the Bedchamber ſtood round it, two before without any Inſignia, and two behind with the Crown and Sceptre. The Captain of the Guards, ſeveral Officers and others placed themſelves at the Head of the Coffin, a Guard from that Corps, their Arms ſhouldered, at the Sides, and two Cadets in the Front. Between them and the Bier were the Judges who accompanied the Proceſſion; and a Guard of Halberdiers compleated the Circle.

The Service in the Choir and the Maſs being ended, the Prior returned to the Attendants, and the Community deſcended to the Body of the Chapel, where they ſang Three Prayers for the Repoſe of the Soul, and the Laudes.

They then proceeded to inter the Body. The Lords of the Bedchamber, aſſiſted by the Steward of the Houſhold, and followed by a great Number of the Attendants, removed it to the Pantheon. It was there placed on a Table at the Foot of the Altar. The Chief Steward opened the Wooden Coffin, looked at his Majeſty's Face through a Chryſtal fixed in the Lead Coffin, and then, with due Formality, conſigned the Body to the Prior, and his Aſſiſtants.

The Captain of the Guard thus aſſured of the Death of the King, broke his Staff of Office, as is uſual on ſuch Occaſions; and the three Companies of Body Guards, with the two Grenadier Companies of Spaniſh and Walloon Guards, fired three Vollies, which concluded the Ceremony.

The Whole was over about half paſt Twelve o'Clock, on Wedneſday the 17th of December.
